NATIONAL CONFERENCE 2018
Developing Conscious Momentum in Under Invested Communities
MAY 30 — JUNE 1, 2018 • TEMPLE OHEB SHALOM

SPONSORSHIP OPPORTUNITIES
THE NETWORK FOR DEVELOPING CONSCIOUS COMMUNITIES (NDCC), a national network organization serving Black led - community development organizations, inspiring conscious innovative community development through practicing mindful principles to gain greater access to financial capital, build organization and sustainability capacity, and promoting a new community development paradigm in under-resourced Black neighborhoods.

Today, NDCC directly confronts the disconnect that exists in Black communities regarding income disparity, leadership and indigenous decision making. Through implementing the principles of conscious community development, our organization seeks to build economically cooperative and equitable communities through transparency, inclusiveness and collectivism. NDCC successfully works to improve financial sustainability, encourage business ownership and increase residential real estate ownership in Black neighborhoods.
In 2016, representatives from 55 NATIONAL AND COMMUNITY BASED ORGANIZATIONS from around the country attended “The West Baltimore National Community Development Conference.” The conference theme was “Developing Innovative Ecosystems in Under Resourced Neighborhoods.”

The conference engaged 70 PANEL DISCUSSIONS on best practices strategies for addressing community development challenges in under resourced neighborhoods and building intentional collaborations to explore new community development paradigms.

Presentations ranged on a variety of subjects including equitable community development, workforce development, engaging anchor institutions, nonprofit resource development strategies, community benefit agreements, neighborhood initiatives for abandoned properties, and many more.

The conference was committed to building intentional collaboration among individuals and organizations invested in building leadership and organizational sustainability.

"Conscious community development is a mindful principle based practice where connectivity exists between people and community development initiatives"
The Network for Developing Conscious Community Development Conference in 2016 was committed to elevating conscious awareness, building connectivity amongst people, communities and institutions.

Baltimore’s challenges are complex and dynamic, and while change is possible here, it’s possible only if we truly listen to one another, share with one another, and work together on the systemic issues that foster and reinforce inequity. THE NETWORK FOR DEVELOPING CONSCIOUS COMMUNITIES GIVES US A FRAMEWORK TO DO JUST THAT. It gives us a chance to come together with our fellow anchors, with our community partners, and with neighborhood leaders to agree on goals, tactics, and metrics, and to secure the future that all of us want.”

— Dr. Jay Perman, President, University Maryland at Baltimore
In Spring 2018, Baltimore, Maryland will be the conference host city. A city undergoing major challenges to rebuild under invested neighborhoods and engage local community development practitioners in developing solutions both impacting local and national agendas.
